

UNDER THE REVONTULET

HELSINKI COLLECTION

XIAOFENG HE

In Finnish, the name for the aurora borealis is “Revontulet”, which is literally translated as “Fox Fires.” The name comes from an ancient Finnish myth, a beast fable, in which the lights were caused by a magical fox sweeping his tail across the snow spraying it up into the sky.

Drown in the vapor.

Ends in the boreal.

